ROGRAMI

the 1990s, the number of people with a diagnosis of schizophrenia has increased in many countries, including the United Kingdom (Murray & Lewis, 1998). The prevalence of schizophrenia is estimated to be 1% of the population (Murray & Lewis, 1998).

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the lives of people with schizophrenia. The World Health Organization (WHO) has developed a number of initiatives to improve the lives of people with schizophrenia, including the Comprehensive Community Mental Health Services for Persons with Serious Mental Illness (SAMHSA, 2003). The WHO has also developed a number of guidelines for the treatment of schizophrenia (WHO, 2003).

The aim of this study was to evaluate the effectiveness of a community mental health team (CMHT) in providing care to people with schizophrenia. The study was conducted in a large urban area in the United Kingdom. The CMHT was established in 1998 and provides a range of services to people with schizophrenia, including case management, medication management, and psychological therapy.

The study was conducted over a period of 12 months. The sample consisted of 100 people with schizophrenia who were referred to the CMHT. The study was conducted in a large urban area in the United Kingdom. The CMHT was established in 1998 and provides a range of services to people with schizophrenia, including case management, medication management, and psychological therapy.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase from 1.1 billion to 1.5 billion.

There are a number of reasons why the world's population is growing so rapidly. One of the main reasons is that the number of children born to each woman has increased. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that women are now having children at a younger age, and that there are more children surviving to adulthood.

Another reason why the world's population is growing so rapidly is that the number of people who are surviving to old age has increased. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that people are now living longer, and that there are more people surviving to old age.

There are a number of other reasons why the world's population is growing so rapidly. One of the main reasons is that the number of people who are migrating to other parts of the world has increased. This is due to a number of factors, including the fact that there are more people who are migrating to other parts of the world.
